The “Product” Column

Use the following guide to determine whether an article is product-specific or not:

Sage Product Name - if the “product” column displays a product name (i.e. Sage 100, Sage 300), the article is written for that specific software application.

General - if the “product” column displays General, these articles cover broad topics like warehouse management or cloud technology that can apply to multiple products. They are product-agnostic.

New Articles - articles highlighted in Orange are the most recently-added
